ADMISSION NOTIFICATION

Post Graduate Diploma in Rural Planning and Management

INTRODUCTION:

Gramin Vikas Trust (GVT) is a very well known CSR face of Asia's largest framers' cooperative; i.e. Krishak Bharati Cooperative, more famously known as KRIBHCO and has long standing expertise and experience in rural development implementation and management to glean a training model of rural development and natural resource management for the rural fraternity at large. Subsequently, in consultation with the GVT, it initiated in 2006, National Livelihood Resources Institute (NLRI) at Ratlam in the state of MP on a 25 acre large land plot. While NLRI envisaged building capacities of different stakeholders of the sector, it also decided to begin a center of higher learning in rural development management, School of Rural Management (SRM). The School of Rural Management boasts of well qualified and experienced scientists, technocrats, social scientists, management experts, communication experts and other professionals and have well-developed infrastructure to facilitate different experiments in relevant areas.
